Q: Is the socket module standard for production usage? For python scripts that talk to servers through sockets, is the socket module in the standard library an acceptable way to go? I am using it and it seems to work fine, but it does seem to be the module that implements the standard library sockets instead of a better one. Should I use another module, or is socket module good enough? I'm on windows (python 3.5.1) A: Sure it's fine. The socket module is the standard implementation. I believe it's exactly the same as the non-blocking socket module in the standard library.

Spurs end lease on Kimble Center parking garage

Spurs officials have said they intend to build a second pro basketball arena in North Texas. A proposed new plan will include a 62,000-seat arena on the site of the Kimble Center parking garage in Frisco. In an attempt to resolve a parking and traffic dispute with the Spurs, Frisco officials have agreed to allow the team to terminate its 25-year lease on the Kimble Center parking garage. The Spurs will keep using the garage on the site until their new arena is built. Under the new agreement, the garage will remain under the control of Frisco. The cost to build the $84 million arena was estimated to be $70 million. The Spurs also have agreed to an additional $15 million in public financing, and will pay $1.3 million in annual rent. "This is about being a partner for a community and a team that cares about Frisco and the North Texas area," said Spurs CEO Peter Holt in a statement. The Spurs and Frisco officials met for about an hour Tuesday afternoon at the Spurs' practice facility at the AT&T Center. The meeting was mediated by NBA Commissioner David Stern. "It was clear to us that they wanted to have an open and mutually beneficial conversation," said Spurs spokesman Melvin Moore. "It's in the best interest of everyone to reach a resolution on this. There will be no further comments from either side until the deal is done." The Spurs have been searching for a site for an arena, and recently met with the Dallas Mavericks, who own the American Airlines Center in Dallas. The Mavericks also have an agreement with the city of Dallas to use the 8,800-seat arena. Spurs officials 82157476af
